The children also enjoyed a whole-school Values Day led by our Faith Group, which focused on the theme of friendship. They loved spending the afternoon taking part in creative activities that encouraged teamwork and reflection. In Jigsaw lessons, the pupils worked collaboratively to design ideas for their own charity events, with one group taking their learning even further by setting up their own food bank in the village—an inspiring example of compassion in action.

In literacy, the class have been busy crafting wonderful poems for the Eisteddfod competition, inspired by the artwork of Kyffin Williams. The children used his dramatic depictions of Welsh landscapes to spark rich imagery and powerful language in their writing. We were so impressed by the care and creativity that went into each poem, and the winner will be revealed during our wonderful Eisteddfod celebration.

In maths, we have been working with percentages of numbers as well as exploring area and perimeter of different shapes, building confidence with these key skills. In our inquiry lessons, continuing our topic What Does It Mean To Adapt?, the children have explored Blue Zones and carried out practical investigations such as dissecting plants, which sparked plenty of curiosity and thoughtful discussion.
